Profile

Dr. Amran Hamzah is an academic-practitioner having served as a Professor in Tourism Planning at Universiti Teknologi Malaysia for more than 40 years as well as having successfully led more than 100 consultancy projects for national and international clients including IUCN, UNESCO, UN Tourism and APEC. His areas of specialisation are policy planning and the interface between nature conservation and tourism. His active involvement in IUCN/WCPA began in 2011, having served in different positions including as an elected Regional Councillor between 2016 and 2021. Amran is currently serving as the Regional Vice Chair of WCPA (Southeast Asia). He has been actively involved in activities under the auspices of IUCN/WCPA/APAP in the form of projects, programmes, and technical workshops. A substantial proportion of his work revolves around protected and conserved area management, sustainable tourism in protected areas, the Green List, OECMs, World Heritage, and rights-based approaches involving local/indigenous communities. His knowledge and experience related to nature conservation as well as extensive network in Asia - notably the mega diverse yet geo-politically challenging South-East Asian region - are critical towards his current and future effectiveness as an ambassador for IUCN.
